

Frogs and Tadpoles

Discovery Sack Fact Cards

Frogs and Tadpoles

Tadpoles are small creatures that grow and change into frogs or toads.

Photo courtesy of Benimoto (@flickr.com) - granted under creative commons licence - attribution

Frogs and Tadpoles

Tadpoles have long wiggly tails and a large head. They have gills to help them breathe underwater. They are usually dark brown, black or grey. They eat algae and water plants.

Photo courtesy of m.shattock (@flickr.com) - granted under creative commons licence - attribution

twinkl.co.uk

Frogs and Tadpoles

Frogs are amphibians. This means they live in water and on land.

Photo courtesy of Shandchem (@flickr.com) - granted under creative commons licence - attribution

twinkl.co.uk

Frogs and Tadpoles

The life cycle of a frog has 4 main stages: frog eggs (frogspawn), a tadpole, a froglet and a frog.

twinkl.co.uk

Frogs and Tadpoles

Although frogs spend some of their time on land, they need to be near water to keep their skin moist.

Photo courtesy of AndyRobertsPhotos (@flickr.com) - granted under creative commons licence - attribution

twinkl.co.uk

Frogs and Tadpoles

Frogs have a long sticky tongue near the front of their mouth. They use this to catch food.

Photo courtesy of Marsel Minga (@flickr.com) - granted under creative commons licence - attribution

twinkl.co.uk

Frogs and Tadpoles

Frogs have large eyes that usually stick out a little way from their heads. This means they can see forwards, upwards and sideways at the same time.

Photo courtesy of Koudy-vw (@flickr.com) - granted under creative commons licence - attribution

twinkl.co.uk

Frogs and Tadpoles

'The Frog Prince' is a well-known story about a princess who kisses a frog and the frog turns into a prince.

twinkl.co.uk

Frogs and Tadpoles

A group of frogs is called an army!

Photo courtesy of branestawm2002 (@flickr.com) - granted under creative commons licence - attribution

twinkl.co.uk

Frogs and Tadpoles

Frogs live in many places around the world. Many colourful frogs live in rainforests - they are known as tree frogs.

Photo courtesy of Tobyotter (@flickr.com) - granted under creative commons licence - attribution

twinkl.co.uk

Frogs and Tadpoles

Tree frogs have sticky pads on their toes to help them climb.

Photo courtesy of sheilapic76 (@flickr.com) - granted under creative commons licence - attribution

twinkl.co.uk

Frogs and Tadpoles

Frogs are very good at jumping. They have strong back legs that they can stretch out to jump long distances

Photo courtesy of BMC Ecolog (@flickr.com) - granted under creative commons licence - attribution

twinkl.co.uk

Frogs and Tadpoles

Many frogs are also good at swimming. They have webbed feet that help them to pull themselves through the water.

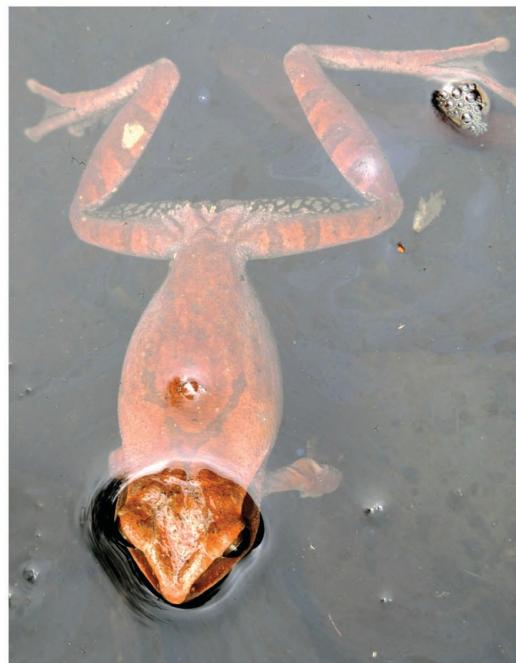

Photo courtesy of CharlesLam (@flickr.com) - granted under creative commons licence - attribution

twinkl.co.uk

Frogs and Tadpoles

Male frogs can croak! Each type of frog has a different sound.

Photo courtesy of Benjamin Dobson (@flickr.com) - granted under creative commons licence - attribution